

Concept Question 10-10: How is it possible that the wavelet transform requires less computation than the FFT?

The FFT divides a large DFT into smaller DFTs and twiddle multiplications. The wavelet transform convolves with short-duration filters and then downsamples. The short convolutions require less computation than the twiddle multiplications.