

Concept Question 3-2: Is convergence of the Laplace transform integral an issue when applied to physically realizable systems? If not, why not?

No, because the Laplace transform integral of $x(t)$ converges provided $|x(t)|$ does not increase faster than an exponential function. Physically realizable systems do not create outputs that increase faster than exponential functions. See Eq. (3.4).