

Concept Question 7-5: What is a recursive equation?

A recursive equation is an equation in which the present output is computed from past values of the output and present and past values of the input. AR and ARMA difference equations are recursive equations.